VISITING TEAM CLAIMS A FAKE

The Rockford Resister Gazette Comes Out in Bold Headline to the Above Effect.

CONCERNING SATURDAY'S CONTEST:

Rockford Versus North Dixon High School Teams Met in Game Here Saturday.

The Gazette in an attempt to heal over the wounded feelings of the boys who suffered their first drawback of the season at the hands of North Dixon, here last Saturday, comes out in bold head lines thus: "North Dixon Works a fake" and follows with a lengthy article in which the claim is also made that the game does not count for North Dixon played a bunch of unqualified men against their local high school team. The article is absolutely false in its every detail and it is so evidently malicious in its make up that we wonder much the Gazette should publish it.

In order to probe the matter to the very bottom our reporter this afternoon visited the North Side high school in person, disturbed Supt. H. V. Baldwin and Principal Mary Burd while busy with their classes and elicited the information that every one of the boys who played Saturday afternoon were attending school, were up with their grades and in every respect qualified players. The individual members of the club were also interviewed and felt much hurt at the cruel imputation. The Gazette furthermore goes on and says:

"After the game the principal of the school told the local manager that there were five unqualified players in the game. This, of course, makes the game count only as a practice game for Rockford, and does not figure in the championship." When Miss Burd, the principal, was shown this she was highly indignant. She said she attended the game in person and had made no remark of the kind whatever to any one. She further disclaimed having had any conversation with the local manager of the Rockford team, and, in fact had not even met him. We quote further:

"The Rockford high school football team has not been scored against this season in a qualified game. Until last Saturday no opposing team had made a touchdown. That afternoon a bunch of players supposed to represent North Dixon, played a tie game with the locals, the score being 11-11.

"The contest was drawn off at Dixon with a Dixon umpire and referee. That did not cut such a figure, however, as the weight of the 'rings'."

Further comment upon such journalism is unnecessary. We only hope and trust that it did not emanate from any of the players of the Rockford team, for they appeared to be a gentlemanly lot of young men, one of whom in particular, Frank Earnsey, is personally quite well known here; his father, Rev. Samuel Earnsey, being our former Methodist minister. We would only suggest that Rockford certainly has good cause to feel chagrined at the result of the game when the comparative weight of the players is taken into consideration; an average of only 130 lbs. for the North Dixon boys while the Rockford boys were veritable giants, averaging over 150 lbs.

HOME FROM SOUTHERN EXCURSION.

G. H. I. Shaw's Party Returned Last Evening--Several Letters Yet To Be Published.

The special car of excursionists from Dixon and vicinity to the sunny Southland returned last evening. It was a delightful excursion and all of the party enjoyed it to the utmost. There were no accidents of moment to mar the pleasure of the trip and, everything possible to further the comfort of the party was attended to by Messrs. Shaw and Tayman.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruner left the car at Houston and will remain in the South for several weeks. Mr. Shaw has business which detains him at New Orleans for a few days.

Besides the pleasure afforded several of the party have made or expect to make investments as a result of the trip. The South offers many inducements for investors, of which we will have more to say later. Several more letters descriptive of the trip were at hand or will be prepared and published from day to day as space permits.

—The Ladies of the Maccabees will have their regular review tonight.

BURGLARY AT CLINTON YESTERDAY

Bold Robber Steals $1,300 Worth of Money and Jewels.

One of the smoothest and boldest robberies ever occurring in Clinton was committed early Monday morning at the home of C. A. Fay, 337 Fourth avenue. Ten minutes after the robbery occurred the police were on the grounds and a diligent search was being made for the criminal, but no trace of him could be found. All the trains leaving Clinton were watched and Mr. Fay was on the ground to identify the man if he were found.

At 4 o'clock yesterday morning Mr. Fay was awakened by the striking of a match. The flash of the sulphur attracted his attention when he opened his eyes, but almost immediately the match went out. Realizing at once that there was a burglar in the room, Mr. Fay reached for his revolver, which he had left at the head of the bed, but the gun was not there. At that minute a voice issued from the darkness admonishing him to be quiet and not raise any outcry, as he was covered with a revolver. There was nothing to be done but to lay quietly and await developments. A moment later another match was struck, and the intruder reached up and lighted the gas. In its light the robber appeared as a man of medium size and height, and wearing over his face a handkerchief which concealed his features. At the mercy of the bold robber, who took care to keep them well covered with a revolver, Mr. and Mrs. Fay were forced to remain quiet while he carried out his work of pillage. First, he went through the pockets of Mr. Fay's clothing, taking his pocketbook, which contained the sum of $80. Then he forced his victims to surrender the rings from their fingers, and, later, to get up and bring out all their jewelry, which was pocketed by the stranger. Mrs. Fay rebelled at the idea of giving up her engagement ring and a watch which she had worn in childhood, and her appeal was heeded by the robber, who remarked that he wasn't such a hard-hearted fellow after all, and told her she might keep those articles. The rest was taken indiscriminately, a gold watch, a solitaire diamond ring of 14 karats, another of 14 karats, a pair of ear-rings weighing 1 1/2 karats, a spiral stud of the same weight, a ruby ring and a pearl-handled knife. These with the money and Mr. Fay's Smith & Wesson revolver, constituted the haul made by the thief. The value of the stolen articles was $1,300.

The thief finally backed from the room closed the door and made good his escape.

The Dixon police department was notified by telegram of the robbery yesterday, but so far nothing has been discovered as to the whereabouts of the robber for whom there is a reward of $300 offered.

Death of Harrison E. Schuler.

Relatives and friends in this city were shocked and grieved to receive a telegram yesterday announcing the death of Harrison Eustace Schuler, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett T. Schuler of Birmingham, Alabama. Mrs. Schuler was formerly Miss Maud Eustace, daughter of Thos. H. Eustace and a niece of Mrs. B. F. Shaw. Death resulted from typhoid fever.

—Miss Mary Davlin and niece Miss Marion Flynn went to Oregon on a visit with friends yesterday.

—Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Plummer went to Chicago this afternoon.

GOOD VOTE BEING POLLED

Every Evidence That Republican Ticket Is Receiving Generous and Faithful Party Support.

STRONG TICKET GIVES CONFIDENCE

Warmest Contest Is for County Treasurer, but Walter B. Merriman Will Hold His Own Without Question.

An off year and a rainy day would ordinarily result in a light vote, but the vote today bids fair to be reasonably large on account of the contest over county treasurer. Walter B. Merriman, republican, and James Kirby, independent, have both been making a warm canvass. There is no question among the republicans, however, as to the support of their ticket, but we cannot give results as The Telegraph goes to press before the polls are closed.

At 4:30 o'clock, a half hour before the polls close, the votes cast at the several precincts in Dixon numbered as follows:

1st 310; 2nd 408; 3rd 330; 4th 260; 5th 290; 6th 250.

NEW CENTRAL DEPOT IN USE.

North Bound Passenger, 9:45 p. m., First Train to Stop.

Passenger train No. 120, arriving in Dixon from the south at 9:45 p. m. was the first passenger train to stop at the new Illinois Central depot. Yesterday afternoon the depot was wired and the telegraph instruments placed in readiness for a quick move of the operating department, as represented by Messrs. Ben G Day and Fred Winders. At 7 o'clock last evening the office fixtures and paraphernalia were taken up from the old depot and later full possession of the office was had.

The depot is situated conveniently at the Seventh street crossing just south of the railway. While a few minor things remain uncompleted, the building may be called finished and it is much admired by the trainmen who have been accustomed to visit the old one. A wide platform surrounds the building and there is an extension at each end of crushed rock pavement. The platforms are lighted with incandescent lights. The rooms of the depot are ceiled throughout with hard pine. Radiators from the furnace in the basement stand in the center of each room. Baggage man Milton J. Stahl has a convenient room at the North end with a high table at one side on which to place trunks, baggage, etc., convenient for loading. The next is the ladies' waiting room and beyond that is the gentlemen's connected by a passage way. On the east side are the toilet rooms and on the west side of the passage the telegraph and ticket office. The room farthest south is that of the American Express Co. Trainmen enter a little room just south of the ticket office to receive orders.

The building throughout is well finished and most conveniently arranged. It was dedicated last night at an impromptu meeting of well known Dement-town citizens on the platform in front.

WILL ENLARGE GAFFNEY HALL

To the Largest in the City, Alley Will Be Paved

M. Gaffney started work yesterday to enlarge his hall and the carriage room beneath it. The addition will be 30 by 50 feet, making the hall 110 feet long and the largest in the city. The room is used by Company G as an armory and also for dances and other purposes so that its increased size will add greatly to its utility. A new maple floor will be put in over the entire hall.

The alley back of the building will be covered and will be made 12 feet wide instead of 10 as it is now. Mr. Gaffney will also have the alley paved with vitrified brick, making the driveway as good as the streets. The work will be a decided and permanent improvement to the locality.

Dixon vs. Rochelle.

The last game of football on the home grounds for the Dixon High School team will be played Saturday College Athletic Park with the Rochelle high school team. Rochelle is the only team that has defeated Dixon this year. Game called at 2:30 p. m. Season tickets of the Dixon College Athletic Association will be honored.

Bad Taste in the Mouth

When you get up in the morning with a coated tongue and a bad taste in the mouth, you may or may not be seriously ill, but if there is any disease going, your system is just right to catch it.

We know what you think—first you are half persuaded to try Vinol, and then you say to yourself: "That's the same story all the medicines tell; I've heard it before."

But Vinol is not like other medicines. If it were, we shouldn't be talking about it in any special way.

If you will regulate your bowels with Vinol and take Vinol to improve your digestion and assimilation of food, these troubles, with the headache, "liver complaint," neuralgia, rheumatic pains, and nerve troubles will disappear as by magic.

We pay back the money if it doesn't help you.

NEWS FROM NEARBY TOWNS

Semi-Weekly Notes from the Dixon Telegraph's Regular Correspondents in the Country.

RECORD OF WHAT PEOPLE ARE DOING

Things Which Are Happening to Make History—The Haps and Mishaps of the Country's People.

HARMON.

Nov. 3.—The farmers have commenced to husk and crib their corn; there will not be as much corn as there was last year.

The big dredging machine has been taken off the cars here and taken to Green-river by teams. They will not have it put together to go to work before the first of next year. They will dig a channel about one hundred feet wide on the top and about eighty at the bottom and to average fourteen feet deep. They are going to straighten the crooked places and make it so that it will carry the surplus water that comes from the east and overflows the rich farm land. Many of the farmers this year had nearly all their crops destroyed by the overflow.

Anson Hills went to Missouri last week to look after his interests in that state.

L. D. Pitcher of Dixon was in our town last week on telephone business.

Mr. Eyster of Sterling was in town last Friday.

The boys on Hallowe'en turned some things topsy turvy, but did not do any particular damage.

Eugene Purcell is now in the hog and grain buying business. He purchased the business from Anson Hills. Hills keeps the cattle business himself.

Samuel Manning has given his house a fine coat of paint.

Thomas P. Long and James N. Swan went down to the Jacob Bauer place last week to make out papers for the heirs to get the money coming from the Woodmen, he being insured in the order for three thousand dollars a nice little sum for them.

Albert McDermott is having his new house plastered. It is a fine house. Wm. Long was the contractor who did the carpenter work.

The Lally boys shelled their last year's corn last week and marketed in Harmon.

Mike Burke has rented a farm south of Harmon where he expects to work next year.

G. G. Kelly has moved onto the farm occupied by Henry Roark for several years. Roark having now moved onto his own farm.

The village of Harmon has been having considerable grading done on the streets, filling up the low places.

Mrs. Geo. Walters has been quite sick for sometime.

Mr. Swan moves onto the widow Smith's farm next year.

Thomas Ryan has moved into the Richards house.

Mr. Fischer of Walnut has moved into the Daniel Swartz house.

Large quantities of lumber is drawn from this town by the farmers for building purposes.

PAINE'S Celery Compound

Makes Permanent Cures in Chronic and Complicated Cases of Rheumatism.

It Gives New Life to Helpless and Crippled Men and Women.

Professor Edward E. Phelps, M. D., LL. D., has given to his profession a positive and permanent cure for all forms of rheumatism from which so many suffer in the autumn season. To the rheumatic, this truth should prove encouraging and comforting. Men and women suffering intense agonies from a disease that frequently stiffens the joints, cripples the limbs and renders its victims quite helpless, can be restored to activity, vigor and health, if Paine's Celery Compound be used for a few weeks. There is every reason why sufferers should pin their faith to this best of medicines. Your friends and neighbors have used it with success; the honest physician is prescribing it every day in cases where all other means have failed, and they are delighted with the happy results. Why hesitate, or doubt the powers, virtues and efficacy of the medicine that is curing thousands today? It is your only hope; your safety and life depend upon its use. Lizzie Pierce, Folger, Tenn., once helpless and in a critical condition from rheumatism, writes thus:—

"I had rheumatism so bad that I could not walk, and could not bear to have my legs moved; I often thought the disease would kill me. I commenced taking Paine's Celery Compound; I used two bottles and have not had the slightest symptom of rheumatism since. I wish I could tell the whole world the good your medicine has done me. My mother, who had rheumatism for years, was cured by Paine's Celery Compound after using a few bottles. She can run now like a child and says she feels ten years younger. I could tell you of a dozen or more people who were cured by Paine's Celery Compound."

INTERNATIONAL LIVE STOCK EX. POSITION.

Union Stock Yards, Chicago,

NOVEMBER 29TH TO DECEMBER 6TH.

The third exposition at Chicago gives every promise of being a world record-breaking live stock event as to quality of exhibit. The breeders and feeders who made exhibit at the two former expositions acquired a knowledge of the importance of exhibiting only the best animals that can be produced. As a consequence there will be a close weeding out of the herds, and high-class animals only will be entered. This will give room to more compactly arrange the animals and admit of ample space for visitors to move about the exhibits.

The hotel and boarding house committee will have a full list of first-class hotels and boarding houses, enabling all who come to secure first-class accommodations at nominal prices. Stockmen and farmers attending this exposition from all points of the country makes it the opportunity of the year for an exchange of ideas between the men who make the live stock commerce of the world. The lowest rates of fare granted for any gathering of business interest will be an effect for this event.

Gentlemen—Rheumatism is certainly one of the most tedious and painful troubles one can suffer from. I have laid awake many a night and shed many a tear from pain caused by rheumatism. The doctor said it was an excess of uric acid in my system which caused my joints to swell, also my hands, so that I could not use them. A neighbor who had been using told me of the great help derived from its use, and I decided to give it a trial. I used it without any visible results for three weeks, but the fourth the swelling began to disappear, and in six weeks I was like a new woman; my rheumatism gone. I thank and bless you a thousand times for this reliable medicine you have placed before the public.
Sincerely yours,
MAY O'BRIEN, 20 S. Halsted St.
The author of this letter is one of hundreds who have written words of praise as to the qualities of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.
N. B.—Although Dr. W. H. Caldwell did not prepare the formula for Syrup Pepsin with the expectation of making it a rheumatic cure, it is nevertheless true that certain ingredients of the medicine are used by practitioners in the treatment of rheumatism, and in a great many cases, of which this letter is a notable example, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has been known to effect a permanent cure.

CONTAGIOUS BLOOD POISON
Is the name sometimes given to what is generally known as the BAD DISEASE. It is not confined to dens of vice or the lower classes. The purest and best people are sometimes infected with this awful malady through handling the clothing, drinking from the same vessel, using the same toilet articles, or otherwise coming in contact with persons who have contracted it.
It begins usually with a little blister or sore, then swelling in the groin, and red eruptions break out on the body, sores and ulcers appear in the mouth, the throat becomes inflamed, the hair falls out, and the face becomes disfigured, copper-colored spots and pustular eruptions and sores appear upon different parts of the body, and the poison enters the blood.
Our MAGIC CURE is a Specific for this loathsome disease, and cures it even in the worst forms. It is a perfect antidote for the powerful virus that pollutes the blood and penetrates to all parts of the system. Unless you get this poison out of your blood it will run you, and bring disaster and disease upon your children. It can be transmitted from parent to child.
Write for our free home treatment book and learn all about contagious blood poison. If you want medical advice give us a history of your case, and our physicians will furnish all the information you wish without any charge whatever.

ELECTION FORECASTS

Gathered from the Authorities of the Two Great Parties Contesting for Power.

TWO VIEWS IN MOST OF THE CASES

Democrats Insistently Claiming New York, Which Is Not Conceded—Estimates from the States Contested.

Detroit, Nov. 4.—If the campaign in Michigan that closed last night is any indication there will be a rather light vote cast today. Secretary Alward, of the Republican state central committee, estimates from the apathy shown that there will be not 80 per cent. of the vote of 1900 cast today. L. T. Durand yesterday gave out a statement predicting the success of the entire state Democratic ticket. This, however, is more than State Chairman Whiting and most other Democrats anticipate. Chairman Whiting predicts the election of Durand with a possibility of the success of the entire state ticket. Other estimates, however, give the state to the Republicans by from 30,000 to 40,000. The legislature, it is conceded, will be Republican, and nine of the twelve congressmen.

"Off-Year" Prospects in Indiana.
Indianapolis, Nov. 4.—The "off-year" campaign in Indiana closed last night, with Senator Fairbanks delivering an address at Kokomo. Leaders of both parties expressing confidence of success. Senators Fairbanks and Beveridge are out with statements asserting that the state will go Republican by from 20,000 to 30,000. The coming legislature will select a United States senator to succeed Fairbanks. State Chairman O'Brien and other Democratic leaders are equally as confident of success as are the Republican leaders, and say they will have "a sweeping Democratic victory."

Both Parties Claim Wisconsin.
Milwaukee, Nov. 4.—Mayor Rose, Democratic candidate for governor last night addressed a gathering which packed the Exposition building in this city. Governor LaFollette (Rep.) rounded out his campaign by speaking to a large audience in Waukegan. Mayor Rose appears to be confident of being elected by anywhere from 12,000 to 17,000 plurality, and General George F. Bryant, chairman of the Republican state central committee, estimates Governor LaFollette's plurality at 40,000.

Claims Made at Chicago.
Chicago, Nov. 4.—The Republican say that in the state election today they will have nineteen out of twenty-two representatives in congress, and more than enough members of the state legislature to elect a United States senator. The Democrats assert that they will have a few more than a majority of the legislature on joint ballot. Of the twenty-two representatives to be elected the Republicans claim sixteen for sure, and feel confident of three more. The Democrats claim twelve. The present delegation in congress is evenly divided.

EAST OF THE ALLEGHENIES

New York Democrats Who Look for a Landslide—New England.

New York, Nov. 4.—The bill before the opening of the final struggle found the leaders of both great parties still claiming large—and in many instances increased—pluralities for their respective candidates. Frank Campbell, chairman of the Democratic state committee, declared himself convinced that his estimate of 35,000 plurality in the state for Coler for governor erred on the side of modesty and expressed confidence that the candidate is sure of election by at least 50,000, and said he had information which indicated that a landslide for the Democratic party might be expected.

Colonel George W. Dunn, chairman of the Republican state committee, on the other hand, stands fast to his original estimate of 37,000 plurality for Odell, which is practically the same as that of the candidate himself.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 4.—The Republican state committee is confident of a general victory today, though Chairman Gates believes the plurality for the state ticket will be reduced from the 14,000 of two years ago.

Boston, Nov. 4.—Republicans are exceedingly confident and the Democrats very hopeful. The former claim the state by 25,000, while the latter believe they will elect their candidate for governor by 8,000 plurality.

Dover, Del., Nov. 4.—William M. Byrne, the Union (Addicks) Republican nominee for congress, predicts a combined Republican majority in the legislature, with a deadlock on the senatorship. The regular Republican and Democratic leaders, however, dispute this claim and assert that not only will Byrne be defeated, but that the Addicks' faction will elect not more than sixteen members of the legislature.

Baltimore, Nov. 4.—Both parties express their strongest confidence in the result. Chairman Goldsborough, of the Republican committee, last evening predicted that the state will go Republican by from 10,000 to 12,000. Chairman Vandiver, of the Democratic committee, professed confidence in the election of four Democratic representatives, with good chances for a fifth.

the house. Democratic State Chairman Gourley expressed the belief that the Democrats would carry four congressional districts, the First, Third, Ninth and Tenth.

Concord, N. H., Nov. 4.—In New Hampshire both sides are confident. The Republicans do not put their plurality for the state ticket at less than 10,000, while the Democrats say that there will be no choice by the people.

Providence, R. I., Nov. 4.—There is every indication that the unusual degree of interest manifested in the election will draw out a very large vote. Much doubt clouds the gubernatorial fight, and only the actual count of ballots will decide between Governor C. D. Kimball, the Republican nominee, and I. F. C. Garvin, the Democrat.

IN THE WEST AND NORTHWEST

Hot Contest in Colorado, and a Heavy Vote Predicted.

Denver, Colo., Nov. 4.—The election in Colorado promises to be hotly contested, and the party managers predict a heavy vote. Both parties claim victory by from 10,000 to 20,000 on the head of the state ticket. The other four tickets are not expected to poll more than 30,000 votes out of a probable total of 220,000. It is generally conceded that the Democrats will secure a majority in the legislature and will re-elect United States Senator Teller.

San Francisco, Nov. 4.—The campaign closed in California with expressed confidence by both the opposing forces.

Topeka, Kan., Nov. 4.—Kansas will elect a full state ticket, including eight representatives in congress. The Republican and Democratic chairmen both profess confidence in complete success at the polls.

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 4.—Republican Chairman Jamison and Democratic Chairman Buck are very sanguine, and in their public statements are credited with a belief in 25,000 plurality for their respective parties.

Fargo, N. D., Nov. 4.—Chairman Hanna, of the Republican state committee, asserts confidence in general Republican success for the state. The Democrats are claiming that their latest poll shows that twenty-three of the largest counties out of the thirty-nine will give White (Rep.) for governor or less than 5,000 majority.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Nov. 4.—Democrats say they will elect from twelve to fifteen of the 139 members of the state legislature. Republicans concede them only about six.

Boise, Idaho, Nov. 4.—Both sides are claiming the state on both state and legislative tickets.

IN THE KEYSTONE STATE

Democrats Hopeful for Pattison—Quay Will Give Them Nothing.

Philadelphia, Nov. 4.—Ex-Judge Pennypacker, Republican candidate for governor, spent yesterday at home in Montgomery county. Robert E. Pattison, his Democratic opponent, was at his office here most of the day. Insurance Commissioner Durham, leader of the local Republican organization, said: "As a result of the reports I have received I predict a Republican majority in Philadelphia of 100,000. The total may be higher. I look for 75,000 majority for Judge Pennypacker outside of Philadelphia. The city will send a solid delegation to both branches of the legislature."

Those of the Democratic leaders still here say that there is no doubt of Pattison's ability to carry the state outside of Philadelphia. Chairman Donnelly, of the city committee, expressed the belief that Pattison's vote in this city will be more than 75,000, which he said will insure his election, if the Democratic expectations are realized outside of Philadelphia.

Senator Quay, chairman of the Republican state committee, issued a statement in which he shows a plurality in the state for Pennypacker (Rep.) of 163,435. The senator conceded but one of the thirty-two congressional districts to the Democrats and claims that the Republicans will have two-thirds majority in both branches of the legislature.

Democratic State Chairman Creasey said before leaving here for his home that Pattison would have 40,000 plurality, and that the next legislature will be anti-Penrose.

Democrats Look for a Surprise.

Columbus, O., Nov. 4.—Before the party managers left for their homes last night to vote no unusual developments were reported anywhere in this state. The Democratic managers still persist that there may be a surprise in the vote on the state ticket and that they will gain three representatives—surely two. Chairman Dick, before leaving for Akron yesterday, said he expected a Republican gain of one by A. H. Jackson defeating James A. Norton in the Thirteenth district. A Republican plurality on the state ticket of from 70,000 to 100,000 is claimed.

What Is Hoped for in Nebraska.

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 4.—Final claims of political managers on the result in Nebraska are: Chairman Lindsay, for the Republicans—"We will elect six representatives, the entire state ticket and two-thirds of the legislature." Chairman Hall, for the Democrats—"We are going to elect W. N. Thompson governor by approximately 10,000 majority." He also counted on four representatives in congress, hoped for five and also the lower house of the legislature.

Texas Is Ready for Sea.

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 4.—The flag was raised over the battleship Texas yesterday afternoon and she is ready for sea. The Texas will sail for southern waters.

STRIKE COMMISSION'S DAY'S WORK

Includes a Visit to the Home of a Miner—John Markle's Works Visited.

Hazleton, Pa., Nov. 4.—The anthracite strike commission spent all yesterday in the Lehigh valley region, visiting one mine and several of the mining villages. While most of the commissioners were looking over the territory Recorder Wright was kept busy on the train attending to correspondence. Among the matters he disposed of was the sending of a copy of President Mitchell's statement of the miners' case to all the coal companies involved in the dispute. The trip of the commission through this region was an interesting one. A conference was held at Pond Creek between the company and miners' representatives regarding the mine to be looked through and it was finally agreed that it should be the Audenried colliery of the Lehigh and Wilkesbarre company.

Commission Visits a Miner's Home.

The commission's first stop of the day was at upper Lehigh, where A. C. Leisenring, superintendent of the Upper Lehigh Coal company, took the commissioners for a drive through the town. While in this place the arbitrators visited one of the homes of the miners—the first they have been in since they have been touring the region. Drifton was the next place visited and there a crowd gathered about the commission as Superintendent Smith, of Cox Bros., whose mines are located there, explained the trouble between the company and its men. All the miners employed at these mines are still on strike because the company insists upon them returning to work as individuals, and not in a body.

John Markle's Works Visited.

At Jeddo, John Markle, the independent operator, joined the party and escorted the commissioners to the mining village of Oakdale, near Jeddo. Markle showed them the club house which he maintains there for the benefit of the men. On the run into Hazleton, where the breaker of No. 40 shaft was inspected, Markle, Duffy and Gallagher (miners' representatives) had a spirited discussion over the differences existing at the Markle mines. None of the men at the Markle colliery has returned to work for the same reasons as those which are keeping the men out of the Cox mines. Markle told them he was running the Markle company and would maintain discipline.

Vein That Has a Steep Pitch.

The entire afternoon was spent in the Audenried mine. The commissioners were lowered into the workings, 350 feet below, through a 1,100-foot slope. One of the new "physical features" they saw was a vein of coal with a very steep pitch, which was difficult to mine. After they came to the surface the arbitrators visited a "stripping" which is a place where the coal lies so near the surface that the earth can be taken off with a steam shovel, exposing the coal and thus making its mining an easy matter.

THAT SILVER DOLLAR CASE

Supreme Court Dismisses It on a Point That Does Not Hit the Merits.

Washington, Nov. 4.—On the ground that no federal question was involved, the United States supreme court yesterday dismissed the writ of error in the case of Fred A. Baker against Stephen Baldwin, both of Michigan, involving the constitutionality of the Bland-Allison coinage act of 1878 for the coinage of silver dollars. The case arose out of a refusal on the part of Baker, to whom Baldwin owed $320, to accept silver dollars in payment. The case was decided in Baldwin's interest by the supreme court of Michigan and Baker took it before the United States supreme court on a writ of error.

The former decision was sustained yesterday, but the court did not enter into the merits of the controversy. In dismissing the case the chief justice simply said: "As our judgments over the judgment and decrees of state courts in suits in which the validity of statutes of the United States is drawn in question can only be exercised under section 709 of the revised statutes, when the decision is against their validity, the writ of error cannot be maintained."

Held Down with His Own Gun.

Clinton, Ia., Nov. 4.—Sunday night a burglar entered the residence of C. A. Fay, editor of The Advertiser, took a pistol from under Fay's head, struck a match, lighted the gas, covered Fay and his wife with the gun and compelled them to give up money and diamonds valued at $1,300. The robber was cool and collected, joking considerably.

Found Hanging in the Barn.

Greenwich, Ind., Nov. 4.—The body of James H. Torr, age 74 years, was found hanging in his barn by his son Walter, and it is believed that he committed suicide. He was born in Kentucky, and was the father of seven children.

Death of Rev. Mr. Puffer.

Decatur, Ill., Nov. 4.—Rev. I. W. Lett Puffer died here last night at St. Mary's hospital as the result of being struck by a train at the Wabash station last Friday night.

LAURA BIGGAR IN JAIL

Goes There Herself and Insists on Being Locked Up, Waiting the Sheriff's Pleasure.

Freehold, N. J., Nov. 4.—Miss Laura Biggar, for whom a warrant was issued for attempt at fraud in connection with the will of the late Millionaire Henry M. Bennett, experienced considerable difficulty in gaining admission to the county jail here when she appeared at the sheriff's office yesterday and announced that she desired to surrender herself.

The difficulty arose over the fact that the warrant was in the hands of a constable at Asbury Park and the sheriff declined to take the responsibility of locking the would-be prisoner up until the document had been formally served on her. Miss Biggar then insisted on waiting in the witness room of the jail until the constable arrived with the warrant, when the sheriff consented to receive Miss Biggar as a prisoner.

DYING OF A CANCER

Bishop Thompson, of the Episcopal Church, Expects Death in About a Month or Two.

New York, Nov. 4.—Bishop Hugh M. Thompson, of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of Mississippi, who has been undergoing treatment in this city for cancer of the throat since August, has been under the care of the foremost specialists of the east, but his malady is reported to have been pronounced incurable.

He has expressed a wish to await the end, which is said to be not more than a month or two distant, at his home in Jackson. Bishop Thompson was born in Ireland in 1830, and was a classmate of ex-President Cleveland in the Camden, N. J., high school. He was rector of Christ church in this city in 1871.

President Arrives at Home.

Oyster Bay, L. I., Nov. 4.—President Roosevelt reached Oyster Bay last evening at 7:20, in order to cast his vote today. He was met with a surprise. About the station 1,000 persons were gathered with a band, big bonfires blazed and fireworks were discharged. When the president appeared at the door of his special car he was greeted with cheers and in reply raised his hat. As he passed across the station platform on his way to his carriage he shook hands with many.

In the Southern States.

Chicago, Nov. 4.—Elections are proceeding today in Tennessee, Texas, Arkansas, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Florida, Virginia, South Carolina, North Carolina and Kentucky. The result is so sure in all the others that Kentucky is the only state where there is any sort of fight being put up by the Republicans, and there it is conceded that the Democrats will nearly sweep the board.

Why He Was Dismissed.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 4.—The dismissal from the Russian army of the Grand Duke Paul Alexandrovitch, uncle of the czar, was due to his recent marriage of the Baroness Pistolkoff, who got a divorce from her husband in order to marry the grand duke.

PROFITS IN RICE RAISING

Letter From The Telegraph's Regular Correspondent With The Excursionists in Sunny South

EXAMPLE OF SOUTHERN HOSPITALITY

People of Liberty Prepared a Barbecue—Marlin Hot Springs—Field for Southern Investments.

MARLIN, TEXAS, OCT. 27, 1902.

We have been having so much fun I haven't had time to jot down any notes for two or three days. We should have left Beaumont at 2 p. m. Friday, but owing to the trouble with the engine did not leave until 8 p. m. The people of Liberty, 121 miles west of Beaumont, expected us at 3:25 and had planned a barbecue. They kept the telephone wires busy trying to learn when we would arrive. It was 11 o'clock when we pulled into the town, but our welcome was none the less hearty. They could not have treated us better and they spent a lot of money in making our hour's stop a pleasant one.

Our band formed a parade and we marched to the court house square while red fire lighted our way. Big bonfires burned around the square and in the park the banquet was spread. At four or five prettily decorated booths the products of the vicinity were exhibited.

We were told before reaching it that the town was noted for its beautiful girls, and none of us had occasion to dispute it. They escorted us from booth to booth, told us to help ourselves to any of the exhibits we wished for souvenirs and chatted in their charming southern accent. In the exhibit were nuts of many kinds, flowers and fruits of varieties new to Northern people, cotton and sugar cane, tobacco and rice.

Our party will never forget Liberty and her hearty hospitality. The town lies in a rich country and the corporation covers an area of 3 by 12 miles, including Liberty and West Liberty (or Dayton). It has a $40,000 court house. E. M. Blair of Dayton has been with our party for several days. He is a worthy representative of his town's hospitality and one of the finest young men we have met in Texas. He has joint interests with Mr. Shaw in some rice land as well as interests of his own near Dayton.

A little practical illustration of the profits of rice farming is given by H. Gistad of Stilson, Texas, who came from Atchinson county, Kas., and bought land in Liberty county, Texas, for $11 an acre. He said: "This is my first crop and while I didn't know anything about rice farming I am well satisfied and will put out several hundred acres next year. I have just sold my crop of eighty-five acres I had in Honduras rice for $4,466.95, and I have twenty acres in late Japan rice and will make me net several hundred dollars more. My Honduras rice averaged 15.14 barrels to the acre, and I sold 976 barrels for $3.85 per barrel and 311 barrels at $2.75 per barrel. This is my first year and I think I have learned something about selling rice as well as raising it. My expenses this year were $773.18, so you can see I made clear $3,793.77 over and above everything. I could have farmed a great deal more land than I did at the same expense, and would have made a good deal more money off the crop if I had known the first year what I do now. I watered my crop from one well, using a gasoline engine."

Mr. Gistad's farm is on section 27, Liberty county's twenty-three miles east of Houston.

Members of our party were the first, and in fact the only ones to greet Admiral Schley at Houston as he passed through on his way to Galveston.

October 5th we spent at Galveston, a great city whose population was depleted from 50,000 to 28,000 by the great storm. Marks of the violence of the storm may still be seen and the high water mark can be detected 8 and 10 feet high on the buildings while the wash of the waves went much higher.

We serenaded Admiral Schley at the Tremont Hotel and he made a little speech, which, however, was rather tame in its climax.

Galveston had one of the finest beaches for bathing I ever saw and the majority of our party took a dip in the salty surf of the gulf. I never had more fun in the water. The first wave knocked our little Dutchman down and he came up with a frightened look and his fists full of sand. The inexperienced soon learned to give a little jump as the wave came and thus rode it without wetting their faces or swallowing salt water. Just as I dived through one of the waves Mr. Blair caught me by the feet. He said I kicked like a good one. The water and air were just warm enough to be comfortable and we stayed in fully an hour.

At Galveston we went through a large Belfast foglight boat, the Rathlan Head, which is 500 feet long and of 3,300 horse power.

October 27th we continued our journey, stopping for an hour at College to visit the Texas State Agriculture and Mechanical College. This is a large and finely equipped institution occupying 2240 acres. There are six college buildings, five dormitories and many professors' cottages. The 350 students are given military training.

A high school course will admit young men from any state. The tuition is $143 a year; which includes everything but clothing and books. The boys get paid for the work they do and can more than make up their expenses.

At Marlin we had a little reception and a concert and speeches were given in the opera house. The town's chief attraction is a hot water mineral spring, a "sure cure for rheumatism." The water is very strongly impregnated with soda, yet not unpleasant to the taste and said to be fine for the bath. Hundreds of sufferers find relief there. The well is 3,350 feet deep and has a temperature at the outlet of 147 degrees.

Our next stopping place will be Waco, where we will remain one night.

A HAPPY TIME AT STEINMANN COLLEGE

How the Young People Celebrated Hallowe'en.

A happier time never was had at Steinmann College, than was enjoyed by the young people there on Friday evening, October 31. A large crowd was in attendance, filling more or less full nearly all the rooms in the main college building. They came dressed in all sorts outlandish, old-fashioned and humorous costumes; some of them so ridiculous as to make a gravestone laugh, and all of them in keeping with the idea of having a happy time. Moreover, the characters assumed by these strangely dressed young people—as, e. g. that of a hobo or tramp, Chinaman or negro, witch or wizard, beggar or simpleton—were carried out to perfection; filling the whole evening with merriment and laughter and contributing much to the general joyousness of the occasion. Also there were several very happily rendered programs in music, recitation, Hallowe'en games, etc., in all of which exercises the participants did themselves great credit. Besides elegant refreshments were served at poverty prices, social games were enjoyed, and in many ways the hours passed by "as happy as a marriage bell." Not the least conspicuous and striking spectacle of the evening were several large Jack-o'-lanterns that, made out of pumpkins, were placed in some of the windows of the building. With their big saw teeth, wide open mouths and flaming eyes all full of fire—these presented indeed a savage appearance. Then, following the entertainment proper, the spirit of mischief which usually characterizes Hallowe'en night broke loose among some of the students, and various wild things occurred. But the tricks resorted to were generally very innocent, and altogether the damage done was trifling. The net money receipts for the evening were $29, which will go for the benefit of the new college library.

Was Badly Hurt.

Fireman Herbert Carow of the Northwestern, who makes his home in Clinton, Ia., was the victim of an accident Saturday evening which nearly cost him an arm. He was firing an engine in the yards at 11 o'clock when the accident occurred. Fireman Carow was seated in the cab of his engine, with his arm resting on the window, the elbow protruding a short distance beyond. A car on a side track did not entirely clear the track on which the switch engine was running, and the fireman's arm was caught between the cab and the car, with the result that the member was badly lacerated the elbow being dislocated, and the bones of the forearm tearing through the flesh. The injured man was taken at once to the hospital, where he was given medical attention. His injuries are extremely painful, and may result in the permanent stiffening of the elbow joint, although the surgeons hope to restore its use.

GROCERIES

Coal Consumers of Dixon:--HOWDY

MURRAY THE CASH COAL MAN

Is back at it again and with the same old famous PANA COAL, which will be a guarantee (regardless of what combinations may try to say and do) that the prices of Soft Coal will be controlled absolutely by the market and not by combinations of Dixon. This concern—MURRAY COAL CO.—is independent and will remain so. We would recommend to those who are in need of coal, to buy now for the information we have from the Coal operators is that the Soft Coal market is the wildest it has been for years and as Chicago is the barometer as to prices and it has come to a question of who has Coal and not price, there will be a time when Coal will be very short—also very high. THE MURRAY COAL CO. will be from this time on the only agents of the famous PANA COAL and will be in a position to have Coal, if it is to be had any place.

PHYSICIANS PRESCRIBE IT.

Many broad-minded physicians prescribe Foley's Honey and Tar, as they have never found so safe and reliable a remedy for throat and lung troubles as this great medicine. Rowland Bros. Co.

WANTED

We would like to ask, through the columns of your paper, if there is any person who has used Green's August Flower for the cure of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and Liver Troubles that has not been cured—and we also mean their results, such as sour stomach, fermentation of food, habitual constipation, nervous dyspepsia, headaches, despondent feelings, sleeplessness—in act, any trouble connected with the stomach or liver? This medicine has been sold for many years in all civilized countries, and we wish to correspond with you and send you one of our books free of cost. If you never tried August Flower, try one bottle first. We have never known of its failing. If so, something more serious is the matter with you. Ask your oldest druggist. G. G. Green, Woodbury, N. J.

ANXIOUS MOMENTS.

Some of the most anxious hours of a mother's life are those when the little ones of the household have the croup. There is no other medicine so effective in this terrible malady as Foley's Honey and Tar, it is a household favorite for throat and lung troubles and as it contains no opiates or other poisons, it can be safely given. Rowland Bros.

CURED OF PILES AFTER 40 YEARS

Mr. C. Haney, of Geneva, Ohio, had the piles for forty years. Doctors and dollars could do him no lasting good. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cured him permanently. Invaluable for cuts, burns, bruises, sprains, lacerations, eczema, tetter, salt rheum, and all other skin diseases. Look for the name DeWitt on the package—all others are cheap, worthless counterfeits. Rowland Bros.

If you are bilious and seeking advisers, Take DeWitt's Little Early Risers. Just before going to bed. You will find on the morrow. You are rid of your sorrow—That's all; just enough said.

These famous pills do not gripe, but move the bowels gently and easily, cleansing the liver. Their tonic effect gives strength to the glands, preventing a return of the disorder. Rowland Bros.

W. A. Heron of Finch, Ark., writes,

"I wish to report that Foley's Kidney Cure has cured a terrible case of kidney and bladder trouble that two doctors had failed to cure. Rowland Bros.

A POLICEMAN'S TESTIMONY.

J. N. Patterson, night-policeman of Nashua, Ia., writes, "Last winter I had a bad cold on my lungs and tried at last a half dozen advertised cough medicines and had treatment from two physicians without getting any benefit. A friend recommended Foley's Honey and Tar and two thirds of a bottle cured me. I consider it the greatest cough and lung medicine in the world. Rowland Bros.

There is no cough medicine so popular as Foley's Honey and Tar, as it contains no opiates or poisons and never fails to cure. Rowland Bros.

THE HOPE of the HEART

BY BALDWIN SEARS

Copyright, 1901, by Baldwin Sears

The scuttle in the roof of the farmhouse opened slowly, and a girl's head appeared. As she held up her face to the evening breeze, her fair skin, yellow hair and delicate features made her appear like some faint star just glancing above the horizon.

A young man with a scythe over his shoulder crossing the lane below the barn looked up toward the house. Seeing the girl, he stopped, straightened his shoulders as though he half expected her to speak and to speak himself, then walked on with lagging steps and disappeared below the orchard where the brook flows into the woods.

Mary leaned her arms on the edge of the scuttle and looked out. The hot air from the garret blowing in gusts past her face was like a twitch at her sleeves reminding her of the household she had left below.

She was the only one who had not already gone to bed. It was harvest time. They were cutting the wheat in the meadows, and all day the hum of the reaper had come up from the broad, white fields where the men were at work. Since dawn the house had been buzzing with lively toil, but now the day's work was ended. In the front room off the porch the farmer and his wife were asleep. They had gone to bed immediately after supper, and while Mary had sat in the porch she heard their low voices talking over the potato crop and the grain, their drowsy words growing fewer, slower, until at length they sank away and ceased, while yet the bobolinks were skimming over the meadow and the red of the sunset lingered.

Across the gate her married brother and a neighbor had talked politics. Mary had heard their nasal voices alternating like the wooden balls tossed by a juggler. In the south chamber just under the attic her sister-in-law had been putting her children to bed, the creak, creak of the rocking chair as it swayed over an uneven board dimly audible through the silent house. In the attic under the roof slept her little brother Bob, dreamless, tired and contented at the end of his long summer day.

Down in the kitchen yard the turkeys and chickens had gone to roost in the apple trees and the grape arbor, clucking and twittering in sleepy protest against the awkward ones as they settled themselves together.

In a few moments it had grown very still and dark.

The girl on the house top drew a long breath and leaned her head back against the edge of the roof. It was only 8 o'clock, and the faint yellow twilight lingered on the border of the summer night. A new moon hung low over the crest of the woods. The west wind brought up the hot smell of ripening cornfields, and a bat darted out of the orchard in swooping circles against the clear night.

From her eye above the treetops the farm buildings, the neighboring houses, the fields and lanes, even the wide post road, looked quite small and cheap, like a toy village. The country-side in its irregular checkerboard of pasture, corn and woodland, pale yellow with the wheat stubble, somber green where half-ripened orchards spread, marked here and there by a cluster of roofs, a spire that told a hamlet in the hills, became significant only in the mystery of distance as it mounted toward the hills and ended at last in one vast, gray, sea-like level against the trackless sky. Mary looked at it all as one upon whose mind the meaning of these familiar scenes had just begun to dawn—these fields, the chickens she must pluck, the bread she must make, the raspberries she must preserve, all grouped themselves before her in a coherent scheme of life. From dawn till dark, each day alike, cooking, washing, preserving, holding the babies—the burdens of each side were hers. So far she had carried them unthinkingly, unquestionably. It was only the lot of every farmer's life.

Tonight she was unusually tired. To escape a feeling of restlessness she had determined to go to bed. It was refreshing to lie in the cool darkness. But before she reached the top of the attic stairs she felt the dry heat of the sun baked roof. The great, timbered space, dark with its age blackened beams and scantily windowed twilight, held a strange odor of cedar shingles, of ancient leather trunks, of musty papers. In the solemn dusk the candle lost its bold glare and drooped to a wavering spark, eyed by the glimmering gray panes of the gable windows high under the ridge.

The two chimneys, like huge stone giants whom she had been feeding all day, stooped over her as they towered toward the roof, reminding her of tomorrow's kitchen work.

As Mary sat on the edge of her cot, thinking of these things, she looked up vaguely. A star, the first in the pale night, shone through the window upon her, clear, unwinning, pensive, holy.

A lock of hair loosened by the wind floated softly across her cheek like the kiss of unseen lips. For the first time in her life she felt the restless longing for some good of which she was ignorant. What was it her simple, sweet existence lacked? Had she not everything that a girl could ask—father, mother, food and shelter, a place in the world? What else had any one? The aged farmer and his wife—those two good people fast asleep without a thought in their nightcaps beyond the potato crop; their daughter-in-law, the men at work in the fields, all those dependent on the great harvests, on the bountiful farm; were they not happy, contented, unquestioning? Was she not happy too? Had she anything to complain of, to regret, to wish for?

Suddenly out of the hush came the cry of the whippoorwill, that piercing, mournful voice of the vacant, wind-blown fields, of meadows flowering unseen and far away. It thrilled her like a pain. It stabbed her through and through and cut her to the heart with its questioning, solitary call, hidden in the twilight of the woods.

She had heard it so often, year after year, like the robin and the lark. Never had it sounded so lonely, so friendless and apart. A strange longing swelled up in her breast; tears filled her eyes. The years of her life, with their simple tasks, their ambitions, hopes and dreams, came to her like some vast tidal wave upon a sunny shore, withdrawing in a long resounding sigh at the absence of some unknown joy. She stared through the warm darkness toward the edge of the woods outlined against the evening as though one should try to read the soul of a silhouette. Then she dropped her face in her hands for a single minute.

At 6 o'clock in the morning Mary was in the garden picking the vegetables for dinner. The sunshiny, dew-fresh day, the beans and cabbages in their prim symmetry, the tall scarlet hollyhocks nodding against the fence, made the experience of the night before very remote and visionary. As Mary reached the end of the row of peas she pushed back her sunbonnet and looked up; then her song stopped and she knelt silently. A young man was standing on the other side of the garden wall looking at her. He blushed as he met her steady, smiling gaze. "Picking peas?" he asked. "You've got a lot, haven't you?"

"Yes, indeed; plenty this year. Have you?"

"All we can eat and more too. Getting old, though. How are these?" He crossed the wall and stood beside her. "Yours are pretty tender yet." He tore off another pod. "Shan't I help you? Two can work better than one."

"Oh, thank you; you needn't bother." Yet she smiled at him. "Oh, I like to do this. I'll take the inside of the row."

"It's very kind of you," she answered, looking up at him sweetly. How brown and strong and sinewy he had grown since he had begun to work in the harvest fields. She had not seen him for a long while, not since they were in school together. She was looking at him again when he glanced up and caught her eyes. This time they both blushed. They said nothing for some time. Mary picked busily, and the boy whistled half to himself. They were beside each other, with nothing between them but the slender trellis of pea vines, enough to give the boy courage to say, "Did you hear the whippoorwill last night?"

Mary felt a flash that made her nerves tingle. "Oh, did you, too?" she exclaimed, then stopped, abashed at her own eagerness. How could Alvy understand the confession she had made to a whippoorwill just because it was unseen? "Where was it?" she asked, with all the carelessness she could summon. "Down in the wood lot about half past 8. I was coming home 'cross lots back of your barn; been up at the other farm all day."

They were picking slowly now. How pretty Mary was with her braided yellow hair, her rose pink ears, her smooth lidded, down drooping eyes! The ruffle of her apron, with its crisp curves, seemed meant to hedge her cheeks from kisses. Alvy felt his heart throb dizzily. So many words and thoughts went round and round in his head that he could not say one. And there was the screen of brush and vines between them. The delicate film of green was strong as a prison grille through which the serene face of the girl glowed upon him. Somehow their hands met upon the same pods. Mary's trembled, then lay still in his.

"I saw you up on the roof," whispered the boy. "You were listening, weren't you?"

Mary nodded. "Do you—do you like to hear it, Mary? Do you like the whippoorwill?" Mary's lip trembled. "I don't know. I guess so."

"Because he—he loves you, Mary."

"Mary, Mary, where are you?" The two in the garden sprang up as the shrill voice called from the kitchen. As the boy leaped over the fence into his own orchard Mary looked after him. From the trees among which he disappeared came clear, low and sweet the call of the whippoorwill.

The Model Army of the World.

What army was the strongest of its time? Judging by results, the Roman army was so from the fifth century B. C. onward until the division of the empire. Its fighting organization was as complete as and possibly more practical than that of any army of today. It was based on a territorial system which maintained the comradeship of locality without bringing it into antagonism with that of the corps, for each of the thirty-five Roman "tribes" was required to furnish to each legion four "centuries" of 120 men, each of which worked together as a local unit. The legion was divided into five cohorts or battalions, of which three were troops of the line, two were a kind of militia and the fifth was a depot battalion. For almost eight centuries the army thus constituted not only conquered the then known world, but acted as explorers beyond its limits, and at the same time made and unmade kings and emperors in Rome itself. In modern times the Prussian army, which won Sadowa and Sedan and overran both Austria and France, was the strongest the world has known.—London Answers.

"Where Ignorance Is Bliss"

[Original.]

A young man stood with his hand on the latch of a house in the country, admired the cheerful appearance of the place, then knocked and was admitted by an old man.

"You are Deacon Merivale, are you not?" asked the visitor.

"Speak louder. I am hard of hearing."

"Are you Deacon Merivale?" the questioner repeated, raising his voice. Still he was unheard and shouted the question in the man's ear.

"Yes; my name's Merivale."

"You had a son, Edgar, who ran away and?"

"Edgar? What do you know about Edgar?"

"I am Edgar's"—

"You Edgar? Can it be that my son has come home to be with me during the last few years I have to live?"

"I was going to say that I am Edgar's"—

"My boy! My boy!" sobbed the old man, falling on the stranger's neck.

Meanwhile the two had drifted from the hall into the living room. As the visitor looked over the old man's shoulder a door opened, and he saw the face and figure of a young girl on the threshold. The situation was awkward. The deacon did not see the girl or hear her. She looked at the newcomer for an explanation.

"He thinks I'm Edgar," he said.

A quick intelligence passed over the girl's face.

"Don't try to disabuse his mind," she said. "He has been talking of my brother continually of late. His mistake may turn out a fortunate one."

This was a great relief to the supposed son. Now that the responsibility was on another he resigned himself to play his part.

"Father, forgive me," he said, with feigned emotion.

The old man raised his head and saw his daughter.

"Emily," he cried, "Edgar, your brother, has returned to us!"

Here was a new embarrassment. Any brother returning from a long absence would naturally take his sister in his arms for an affectionate embrace. Any sister would naturally fly to the arms of her brother. Yet these two stood apart.

"Daughter," said the old man severely, "I have forgiven Edgar. It is my wish that you welcome him home."

The spurious Edgar advanced penitently and, gently putting his arms about the girl, who blushed red as a rose, kissed her.

That night after the old man had gone to bed, thankfulness in his heart at the return of his son, the stranger told Emily Merivale the story he had tried to tell her father. Edgar Merivale and Frank Tucker were joint prospectors in Colorado. Having acquired a valuable mine, it was decided that Tucker should go east and organize a company to work it. Just before Tucker left Merivale died, having charged his partner to bear the news to his father and sister. Emily dared not at present announce it to her father. She determined to advise her neighbors of the deception and for the present keep it up.

Tucker was successful in his business efforts and was making preparations to leave for the west. One evening Deacon Merivale entered the living room suddenly to find Emily in Tucker's arms.

"It beats all," he said at a church so-called the next evening, "what brotherly and sisterly love there is between my boy and girl. Last night they were sitting on the sofa hugging and kissing as if they'd been a pair of freshly hatched lovers."

This speech was not long in getting to the ears of the pair. What was to be done? After long deliberation they decided to be privately married and, telling the old man that Edgar desired his sister to go west with him, take their departure together.

It was not an easy matter to perpetrate an act that must be known to all the world save one person and he of the nearest relationship, but the place was small, and every one thought it would be a pity to break the news of Edgar's death to the old man, he supposing his son had come home to him. It made Emily's heart bleed to leave her father alone, but there was no way to avoid doing so except by a confession. The couple were married in the deacon's study, then went home and bade adieu to the father.

From their western home they wrote the deacon that the mine was doing famously and as soon as its success was assured they would bring him out to join them or return to him. His neighbors were much interested in hearing the old man talk about his children's affection for each other—so great, in fact, as to render them inseparable. But as time passed and they neither returned nor sent for him he concluded to make them a visit. He disappeared one day, and his neighbors at once inferred where he had gone. It was generally admitted in the village that the secret would be out, but all hoped that the shock would not break the old man's heart. In a few weeks it was announced that he had returned. The first person to meet him was the deacon.

"Well, deacon," asked the latter, "have you visited the runaways?"

"Yes," replied the deacon, "and found them prosperous and happy. But nature will have its way. Emily, to make up for her sacrifice in devoting her life to her brother, has adopted the prettiest baby you ever saw."

A few months later the deacon died, happy in his children's happiness. The funeral sermon bore upon doing evil that good may come.

CALLING THE TIGERS

[Copyright, 1902, by C. B. Lewis.]

Colonel Ryder, stationed at Bangalore, India, missed from his effects a valuable ruby. The only person who could have taken it was his body servant, who had served him faithfully and honestly for many years. The man protested his innocence, but the colonel ordered him flogged. The accused was a high caste man, and a flogging meant social death to him. In his distress he sent for an old man named Doorunda. The old man came and said to the colonel:

"Syng Rang is innocent. If you whip him, he must die by his own hand to wipe out the disgrace. Spare him, and I will do my best to find the thief who stole your ruby."

The colonel at once reasoned that Doorunda was a partner in the theft and announced that the flogging would take place on the morrow if the gem was not given up. It was not restored, and Syng Rang was publicly whipped and committed suicide the same evening. As for the old man, he disappeared from Bangalore, and there were those who thought he might have taken the plunder with him. Four months after the disgrace and death of Syng Rang and when the event was all but forgotten the colonel and four other officers of the Fifth went on a tiger hunt into the foothills of the western Ghats.

Three or four tigers and a couple of panthers were bagged, and not an accident had happened. Then one of the servants reported that old Doorunda had been seen near the camp and when accosted by one who knew him well had run away. His only object could be revenge, but yet the matter was treated lightly. No search was made for him until his presence was reported again, and then the servants who were sent out did not wish to find him. He had a reputation of which they stood in fear. After three or four days, however, he entered camp one day when all the officers and most of the servants were away on the hunt. To one of the syces, or grooms, he said:

"I do not wish that harm should come to my own kin, but I will destroy the sahils root and branch. On the third night from this, an hour after midnight, you will hear me singing behind those rocks up there. When you do so, you must not lose a moment in climbing a tree. Tell this to all others, but say not a word to the sahils."

"But what is to happen when you sing?" asked the groom.

"What is to happen will happen."

With that Doorunda disappeared, to be seen no more. The groom notified all the other servants as they came in and then went to his master with the story. The five officers were made up of the colonel, major and three captains, and the groom served one of the latter. The story was passed along to the colonel, who received it with a sneer and sent out word that if the old man was caught sight of again he should be made prisoner and held for a flogging. If any of the officers was inclined to heed the warning, he gave no outward sign of it, but the servants quietly prepared to obey the injunction. At midnight on the third night, while the white men slept, the dark skinned servants left their campfires and mounted into trees and remained silent and watchful. For an hour all around them was quiet and peaceful, and some of them had begun to laugh at their own fears when the shrill, wailing voice of the old man came to them from the rocks. It was an incantation he wailed out, and he kept it up for ten minutes. None of the officers awoke. The servants shivered with fear as the voice continued, and the horses stamped and snorted and pulled at their halters. It was strange that men who sleep as lightly as soldiers do should not have been aroused, but it was so in this case. Two or three minutes after the song ended the natives looked down from their perches to see old Doorunda enter camp with as many as a dozen tigers frisking around him like so many dogs. He halted before the colonel's tent and stood still for a moment, and then, clapping his hands, he cried out:

"Now, now, now! Now you may rend and tear and kill to the last!"

A horrible tragedy followed. The tigers separated and rushed upon the tents, and in only one case was a shot fired. It was all over in five minutes. Two of the horses broke away and escaped, but the others were dragged down. The maddened tigers spring at the trees and raged about, but offered no harm to the old man in their midst. When all was over, he quitted them with a whistle, and standing in the center of the camp, he said to the terror-stricken men in the trees above him:

"Had the sahib colonel spared Syng Rang I would have spared him. This is my vengeance for the wrong that was done an innocent man. Tomorrow you will go back to Bangalore and tell them what has happened, and tell them I brought it about. I am sorry for the sahils who were innocent, but they were here with the guilty and could not be separated."

When morning came, the natives headed for Bangalore, and the tale they told on arriving appeared so incredible that all were locked up until it could be investigated. It was found true to a word. Every officer lay dead in his tent, and each one had been so mangled by teeth and claws that the living turned away from him with a shiver. And when an innocent man had been disgraced and driven to death, and five officers had been torn to pieces by savage beasts, those who overruled the dead colonel's effects discovered the ruby in a box to which he had changed it for greater safety and forgotten the circumstances.
